

Go Miss Markle

From
Class of 73

MISS MARKLE - Director

To the Graduating Class of 1973.

August 31, 1973 terminates an era in nursing history in Ontario to which the graduates of this school have contributed widely and wisely. For the past 80 years there have been students associated with the hospital in St. Thomas.

The program in the school has altered, the name of the school has been changed four times but the underlying philosophy of "caring of and for the patient" has remained constant.

We would suggest to you that you have, through heritage and education now an obligation to make the contribution that only you can make in whatever situation you may be. Nothing you may do will be meaningless.

On behalf of the staff of the School, I extend best wishes to you.

Most sincerely,

Dorothy E. Markle
Director

MR. BLACK

TO THE GRADUATES

The challenge of changing methods in health continues apace and in September 1973 we will see it come very close to home ground in the transfer of nursing education to Fanshawe Community College. While little apparent change may be immediately discernible the implications of the change for nursing education to an integrated system with other forms of education may be far reaching in the future.

The history of nursing schools is a proud one, one which over the years has produced graduates able to take their places in the health care field and to provide leadership in many ways in the changing and growing atmosphere and the increasing complexities of the health care system.

Those of us who have been intimately involved with the Schools of Nursing and their close relationships with the hospitals where the students acquire their vital clinical experience have some feelings of ambivalence about the change, we are concerned about the bigness of community colleges and the 'depersonalization' of big systems, particularly when education in nursing is so deeply concerned with relationships with the patient as a person. On the other side, however, it must be admitted that nursing is stretching out into a much broader area and nurses will continue to find themselves in new situations with new responsibilities as the health care field continues to expand. The community college may well be able, with its greater resources, to provide a broader background to enable the nurse to cope with and become accustomed to the new areas of our health care society. The college may also be able to assist in coping with the fragmentation which impedes our health care system since it will be dealing with the whole field and range of health care service personnel.

To those of you who are presently graduating I say sincerely that you should feel no sense of inferiority because of the changing system, you are the graduates of a fine educational program which emphasizes all that is useful and desirable in nursing. You are competent, professional nurses and, as you take your place in your chosen area of work you will be judged and not found wanting.

On behalf of the Committee of Management of the School I sincerely wish you every success and trust you will continue to grow and to learn so that you can adequately meet the challenges of our changing health care system.

VALEDICTORIAN ADDRESS

MR. CHAIRMAN, HONOURED GUESTS, FELLOW STUDENTS, FRIENDS, and FAMILIES: --

Tonight it is my honour to represent the Class of '73 by giving this Valedictory Address. I will strive to express the thoughts and feelings of the whole class and to honour my fellow graduates as they have honoured me.

On this day, Thursday, July the 26th, we, the Class of 1973, have come to the end of one short pathway in our lifetime journey. The road has not always been easy; in many cases the obstacles encountered have seemed insurmountable. Yet they were conquered. With a deep sigh of relief we have all gathered here tonight and sincerely acknowledge that we would never have met our goals without the help of friends -- and we say friends rather than teachers because the word says so much more. Their knowledge and friendly guidance, both in class and on the wards, have left us with a sense of a debt that will be hard to repay, but one we hope to recognize through our own service to others.

The assistance of hospital personnel and medical staff has been most beneficial. Their patience and their experience which they have so generously shared with us will forever be appreciated.

We would also like to thank the Hospital Auxiliary Association for the gift of our school pins which we will shortly receive. We earnestly hope that we will all be worthy of the fine traditions these pins represent, and that by wearing them we will symbolize and reflect the high standards set forth by our predecessors in this school and hospital.

To Miss Markle we extend our gratitude for the leadership which her position demands and which she so ably provides.

During our early days as students, we little realized the responsibility that would be ours. We want to say to our juniors: -- next year will fly by, and you too will be assuming the responsibility. Embrace it -- wear its mantle well -- and accept our wish of: "All the best to you!"

The most important "Thank you" still remains: -- the one we now express to our parents - husbands - wives - families. Your loving support and ever-constant belief in us have helped and guided us through to this happy night. Thank you, each and every one of you, from every one of us.

Here we are -- a group of young men and women about to assume our responsibilities as graduate nurses, and we feel the solemnity of the occasion in the formality of our commencement exercises. Who could guess that any of this sober group would ever have had laundry-basket races in the hallowed halls of the residence? Who could believe that any one of this class would use windows as exits instead of doors? Well, these and many other non-academic incidents are accredited to the Class of '73. We will never forget the escapades and the fun, and we doubt that others will manage to do so completely! However, they are as much a part of these last two years as are the important milestones of our progress toward graduate status: -- our first day on "Meds" . . . our first day as team leaders . . . our first close involvement with life as a child was born . . . and our first encounter with the end of life as a cherished patient died. Gradually we learned the ways in which we could develop our instincts and needs for helping, for caring, for nursing.

Together we learned and together we are graduating. Let us try to maintain in our hearts the warmth we have felt for our patients and for each other, and pass it on to those for whom we will care in the future.

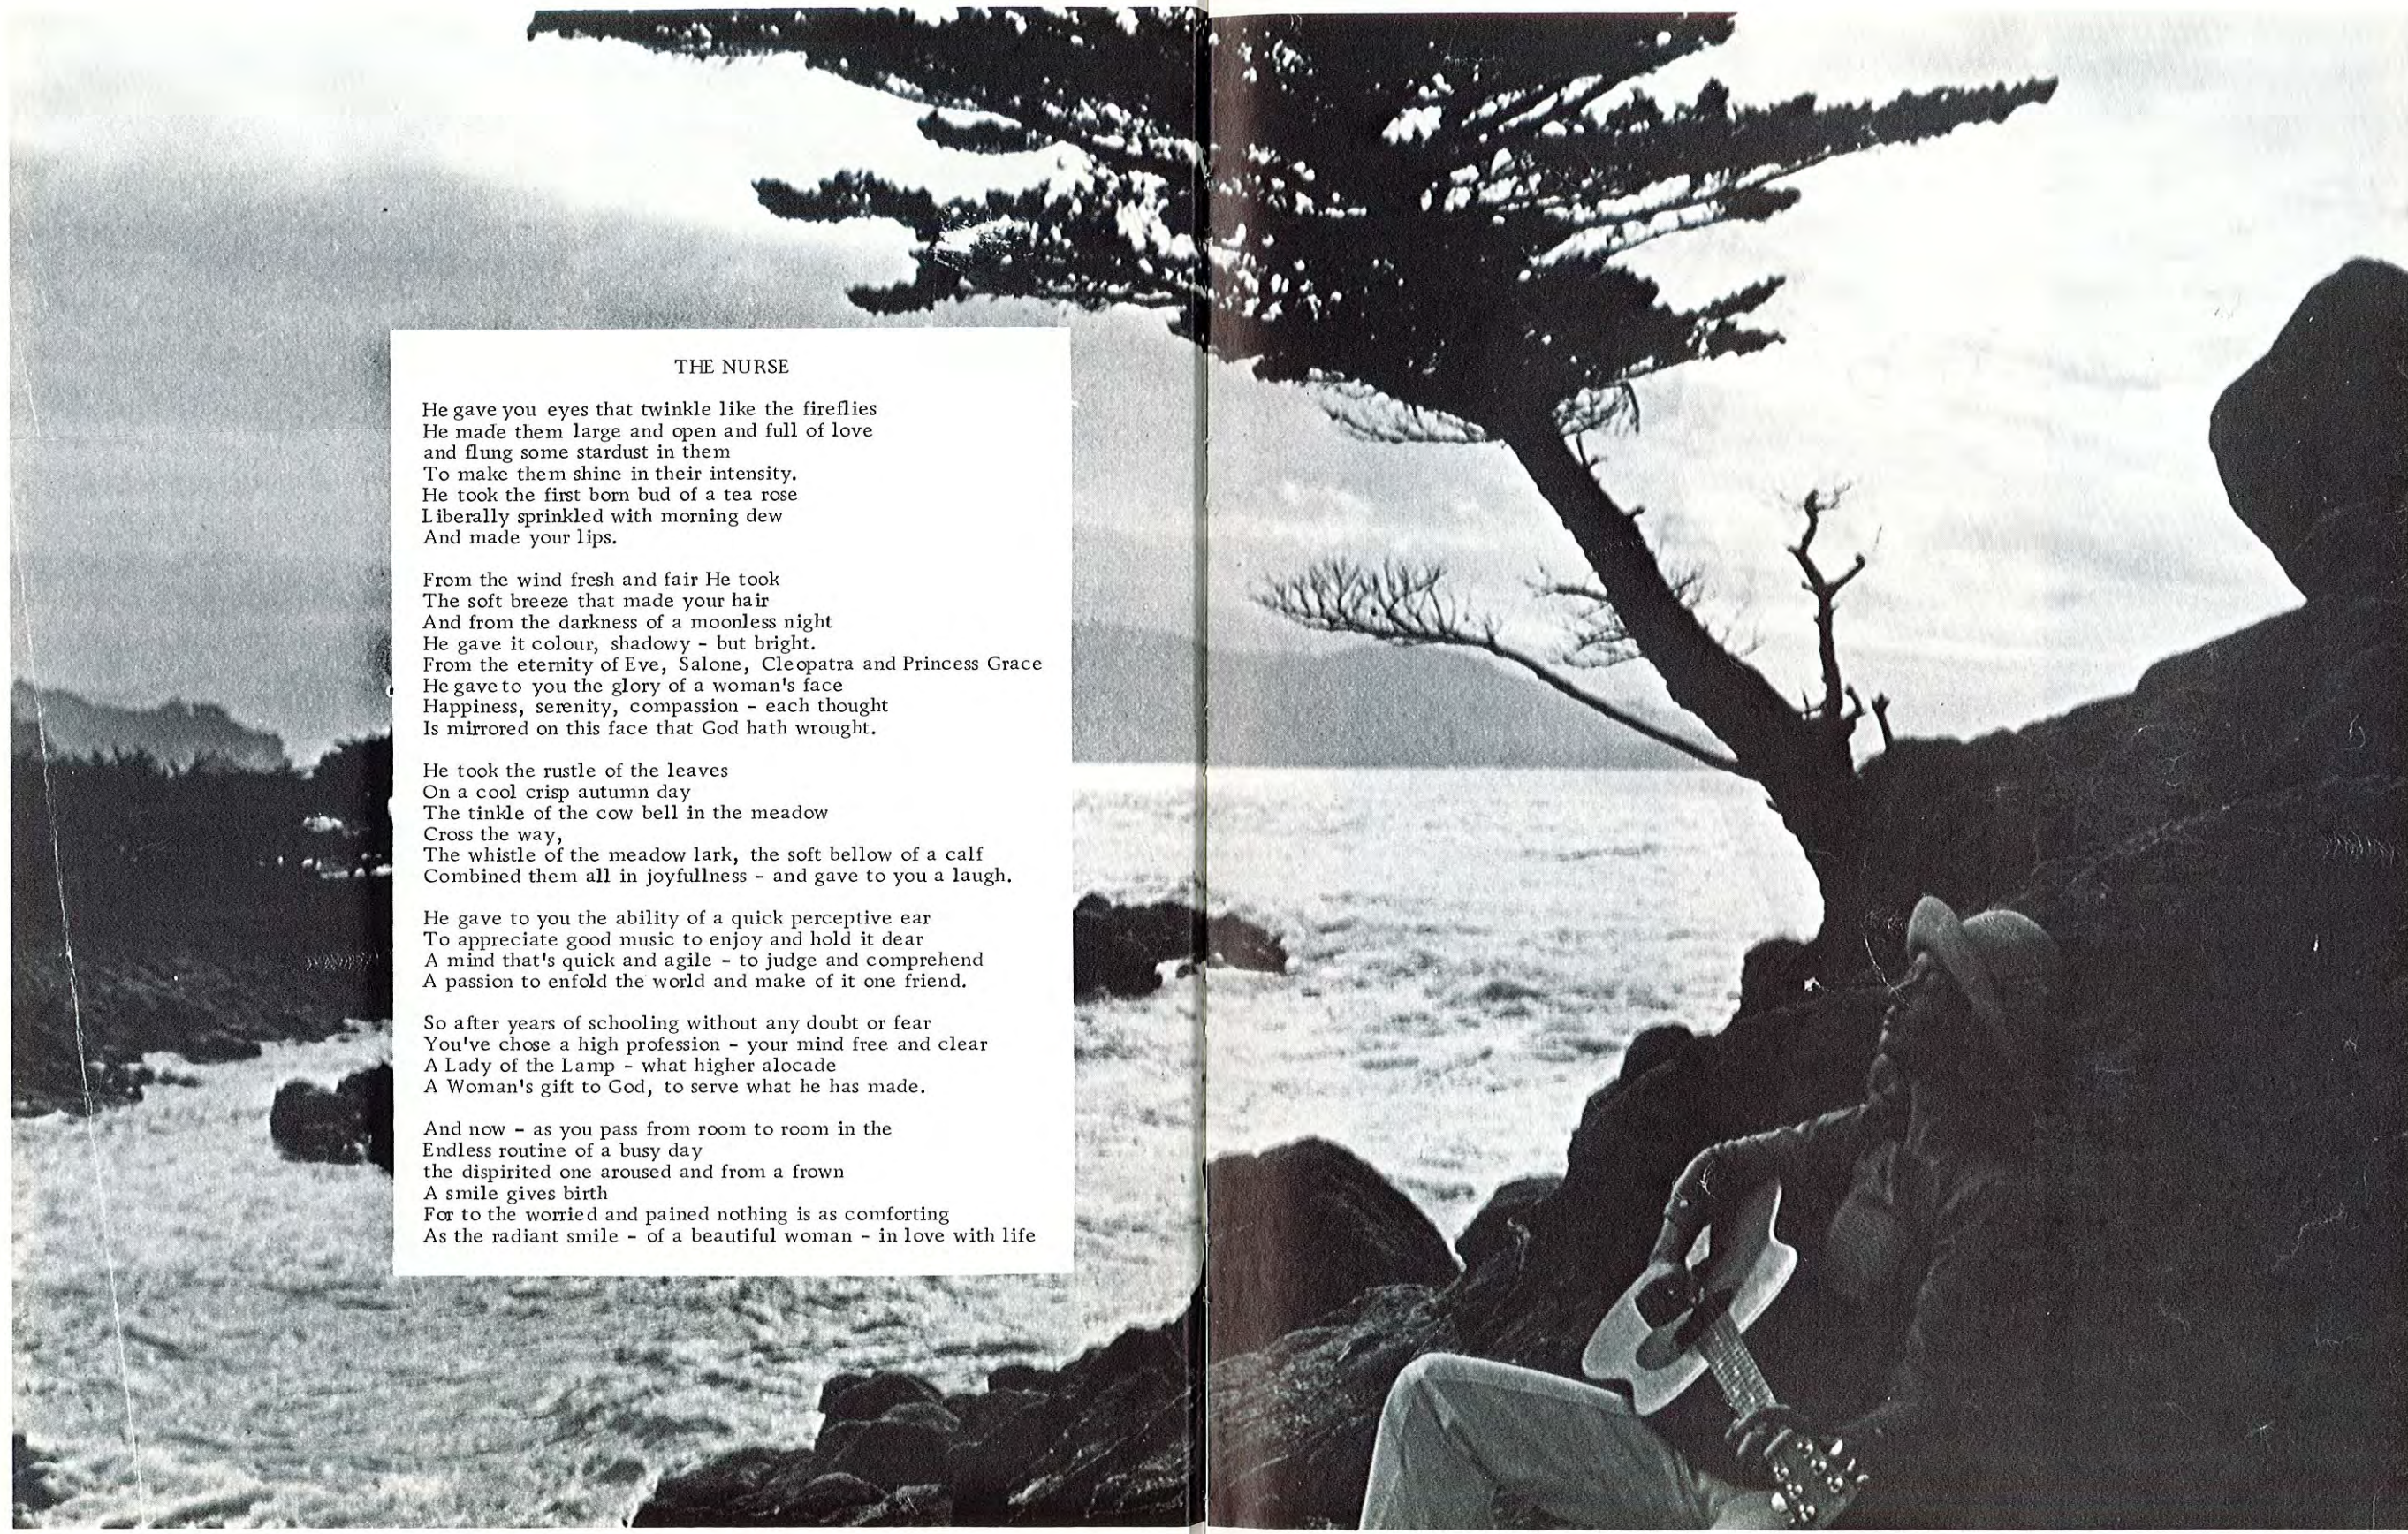

These thoughts I leave with all of you who share in our joy tonight. I hope and I feel that they are representative of the class - my class - the Class of '73.

Thank you . . . Good Night . . . and May God Bless!

Marlene Berry
Valedictorian

THE NURSE

He gave you eyes that twinkle like the fireflies
He made them large and open and full of love and flung some stardust in them
To make them shine in their intensity.
He took the first born bud of a tea rose
Liberally sprinkled with morning dew
And made your lips.

From the wind fresh and fair He took
The soft breeze that made your hair
And from the darkness of a moonless night
He gave it colour, shadowy - but bright.
From the eternity of Eve, Salome, Cleopatra and Princess Grace
He gave to you the glory of a woman's face
Happiness, serenity, compassion - each thought
Is mirrored on this face that God hath wrought.

He took the rustle of the leaves
On a cool crisp autumn day
The tinkle of the cow bell in the meadow
Cross the way,
The whistle of the meadow lark, the soft bellow of a calf
Combined them all in joyfulness - and gave to you a laugh.

He gave to you the ability of a quick perceptive ear
To appreciate good music to enjoy and hold it dear
A mind that's quick and agile - to judge and comprehend
A passion to enfold the world and make of it one friend.

So after years of schooling without any doubt or fear
You've chose a high profession - your mind free and clear
A Lady of the Lamp - what higher alocade
A Woman's gift to God, to serve what he has made.

And now - as you pass from room to room in the Endless routine of a busy day
the dispirited one aroused and from a frown
A smile gives birth
For to the worried and pained nothing is as comforting
As the radiant smile - of a beautiful woman - in love with life

LIFE IN RESIDENCE

THE CELLS STILL DIVIDE

On his chart is written his name,
The room number, his age, the diagnosis;
He lays there so tranquil, so very ill
But he does not know he is.

A young lad lies in that room,
Unaware of the changes in his body;
Yet, he still talks, he happily speaks
Of his future, so proud is he.

For twenty-one short years he has breathed and laughed and cried;
For twenty-one short years he has lived
And now the cells grow and divide.

He is enrolled in college;
He talks of his girlfriend so gay,
But no one tells him -
Those cells are still growing each day.

He was told that he is fine,
They removed all the tumor.
He believes he is cured
And now is in great humor.

We study his case;
We talk and theorize
But time still goes on and those cells still divide.

I study books of dying,
I try to understand,
But death is so deceiving,
It can hold one by the hand.

He will find out someday,
He will ask why he is still so bad,
And my heart is aching deeply;
For that moment will be sad.

Each time I enter his room
I say a little prayer,
I want to hold his hand
And tell him how much I care.

But I cannot tell him
That he will not live long,
And I pray that somehow,
God will help him to be strong.

THE BEST MEDICINE

SUCH IS TIME

Such is time which takes in trust,
 Our youth, our joy, our love
 And pays us nothing;
 When in a dark and silent way
 Ends the story of our days;
 Yet, on this earth time does give,
 A moment - or years - for each of us to live.

MY HOPES AND ASPIRATIONS

May I be strong and good each day;
 May I be kind and true;
 Greeting all people in a gracious way,
 With cheer in the things I say
 And love in the deeds I do.
 May a soft but strong heart be mine,
 With the grace of a rose in bloom,
 Let me fill their days with hope devine
 And make all people clearly shine,
 With hardly a cloud of gloom.
 With the golden gift of helping others
 I would lift the world so high;
 O, let me meet the needs of those who are ill,
 Let me come to them with well practiced skills,
 Let me help them when they cry.

"GRAND ROUNDS"

Could I strike out but once,
I think that I would let my venom linger
To infiltrate and destroy the Physician's sacred conclave
Known as "Grand Rounds. "
Specialist, Resident, Asst. Residents, Intemes
Students, Nurses, Aids and Orderly,
They come like hungry vultures to gather over the corpse
And with their cold analytical logic to dissect,
Ingest, Digest and discuss in minute detail
Before your very eyes.
Being an inanimate source of dissatisfaction, a blight on the medical esquteon,
It is imperative that you be all consumed - nothing to be left

Except the fact!
If in their concentration they should relax for one moment
To grant for one second the thought - that you are human
They immediately discard anything they have asked you to say
As being irrelevant and not to be considered
In the final analysis.
Looking down on you in their cold concentration they unknowingly
Give you the satisfaction,
They cannot change your spirit - nor the way you feel.
With a condescending pat on the leg, a sickly smile
"Your doing fine, keep it up"
They back away and turn with glee to attack
The next object of interest on their list,
Leaving a darkness and confusion but not knowing
That in so doing - they have given
A happiness
In being delivered from the Sorcerer's Nightmare,

"Grand Rounds. "

GUESS WHO?

BABY YOU HAVEN'T CHANGED!

A MOMENT OF FEAR

Shall I find life but to lose it?
Shall I stretch my hands out to joy
And only find it was a toy?
For the cost of happiness is sorrow,
The terrible cost of life,
Is the fear of being forgotten tomorrow.
